Voluntary work

Meals on wheels

During the holidays I started to feel bored. So my friend and I decided to try some voluntary work. We went to the local «Old People's Home» near the school and offered our help. They always need boys to help with Meals on Wheels, and were grateful for our offer. So we started our work very soon.

Meals are cooked in the local «Old People's Home» and then delivered by car to the private homes of hundreds of pensioners. Boys help deliver food. Nobody gets paid for doing this, as it is voluntary work. Estate cars are used to deliver the dinners. The food is kept in metal boxes to keep it warm. In one box you have meat and soup and in another you have puddings, sometimes fruit. Jars of jam and magazines are also delivered. We children sit in the back of the car and we deliver the food to the house when the car stops.

When I start out in the morning, I am quite happy and cheerful, but when I finish the work, I feel very tired but proud, because I've helped someone who needed my aid.
